1972

Sorry!
It's all over,
everything school,
plays, homework ect.
Will it all start over again for everyone
here? I wonder. Well
I hope you find some one else to say "Put your dress down," or
"Put your pants down"
whichever the case may be. Because you never know I may not be here tomorrow or next year you may not remember. Oh well
it's been fun, and

CLAN

next year it will probably start all over

It was warm all winter. It rarely snowed; instead it rained. The school built new athletic fields and the rain turned them into mud. In the morning the students walked through the fields. In the afternoon the sun warmed the quagmire; the kids sloshed home. Spring came and with it grass. The grass grew from the mud as best it could under the feet of the students. It gave substance and form to the mud. It was summer then and the students no longer daily traversed the fields and the fields stood silent and empty, awaiting the coming of fall.

Eric,

I know I can't finish this in six minutes so I'll start it now and maybe we can continue. Oh, it's been so fantastic! Believe me I'll never forget it. I can't!! Now for a trip (chemistry) down memory lane!

Would you believe I don't believe I remember you during lifetime, but that was easily remedied. I haven't been the same since.

I have to finish my strawberries.

Here we are back at the lunch table. Oh isn't it wonderful to remember all the potatoe chips we shared, together on the main side getting comment from the spectators in the planet gallery.

Speaking of peanuts. Don't eat too many. Well (very deep subject) on second thought it wouldn't do anything. Take it any way you want, just don't take it the wrong way!

May you wish the funny accident! Better get rid of it. I like to be in America. The trouble is he's lazy.

May little boy, want to see a Wizard?

I'm Innocent(!). Where did they go? $75?

At a motel is the last place I had mine.

I never knew an Elf could have so many problems. I'm glad you let me listen to some of them. Be careful and don't go too fast.

Listen kid, I gotta finish lunch.

Stay perverts and maybe someday!

You'd better come & watch potpourri!

Heave and only to the relief of the world.

Think about it

Love,
Kathy

The school's atmosphere fluctuates between carefree laziness and pressured concentration, the variables being the class, the teacher and the cycle of work. Few enjoy the worry of long term assignments, most procrastinate and let the little stockpile be ignored or attacked. In most cases the malignant homework and innumerable tasks thrust themselves upon the guilty student, and only then does the real work begin. The process and the relaxed attitudes alter into efficient, if not altogether in-depth, habits; now, instead of banter, reading; instead of games, essays—concentrated efforts to forestall the onslaught and perhaps save what's left of slumping grades.

To be truly successful, education must concern itself with the whole person. Education today is dominantly verbal. We rely on speech because we are never trained to communicate in other ways. And yet, much can be said without words. Education should involve all the senses. We should learn to use our hands and to appreciate the creative value of touch and of physical contact as an educational tool. We should learn to use our eyes for more than superficial viewing. We must strive for the deeper, truer reality behind what appears to be true. We must go beyond sight and strive for insight, for "there is more to life than that which meets the eye." We should learn to use our ears as they were meant to be used. We must learn to truly listen and thus to enhance our awareness and appreciation of the different sensations of sound for the sake of sound itself as well as for the sake of communication. An education of this sort will teach the student a greater appreciation of himself and of his world.

Too often the process of learning consists of no more than a continuous verbal give and take. We talk and listen or, occasionally, we read. Minds, not bodies, are taught in most classrooms. If education is allowed to become simply a matter of reason and rationale, it will be inadequate, for, essentially, body and mind are inseparable. A sound mind is not possible without a sound body, nor is the mind capable, by itself, of acquiring true knowledge. The body has wisdom to teach which the mind knows not. The intellect is but one facet of the human being. To be truly learned, values must be celebrated with all the facilities, sensation and emotion as well as reason. When this occurs, education ceases to be a matter of formal school—and becomes, instead, a lifetime process and a valuable, integral part of the person involved in the process.

Free School Week never got under way this year. It had to be cancelled for lack of student response. Though no actual period of time was set aside for Free School, many used the unscheduled 7th period to take courses such as drawing and typing.

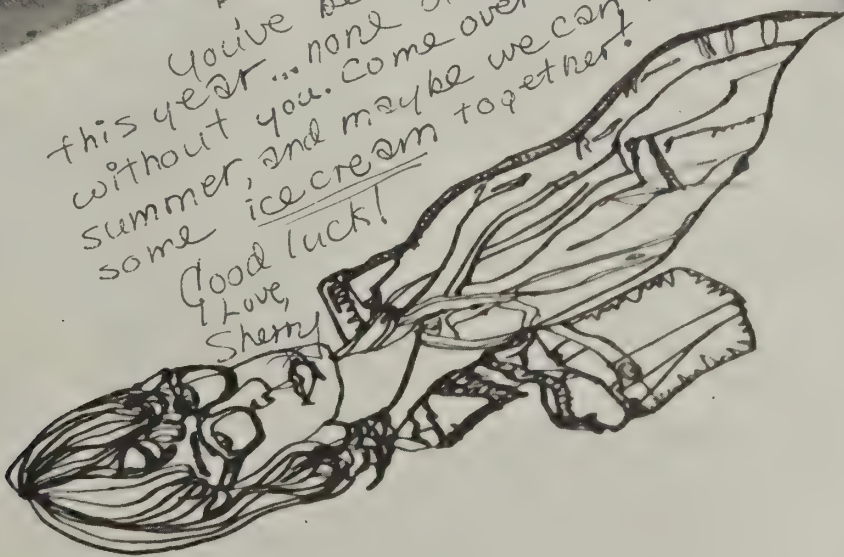

Another program was the series of lectures which were held every other week during the second semester to acquaint students with subjects about which many had had no previous knowledge. So, though there was not sufficient interest to warrant a Free School Week, there were alternatives available to those who cared to take advantage of them.

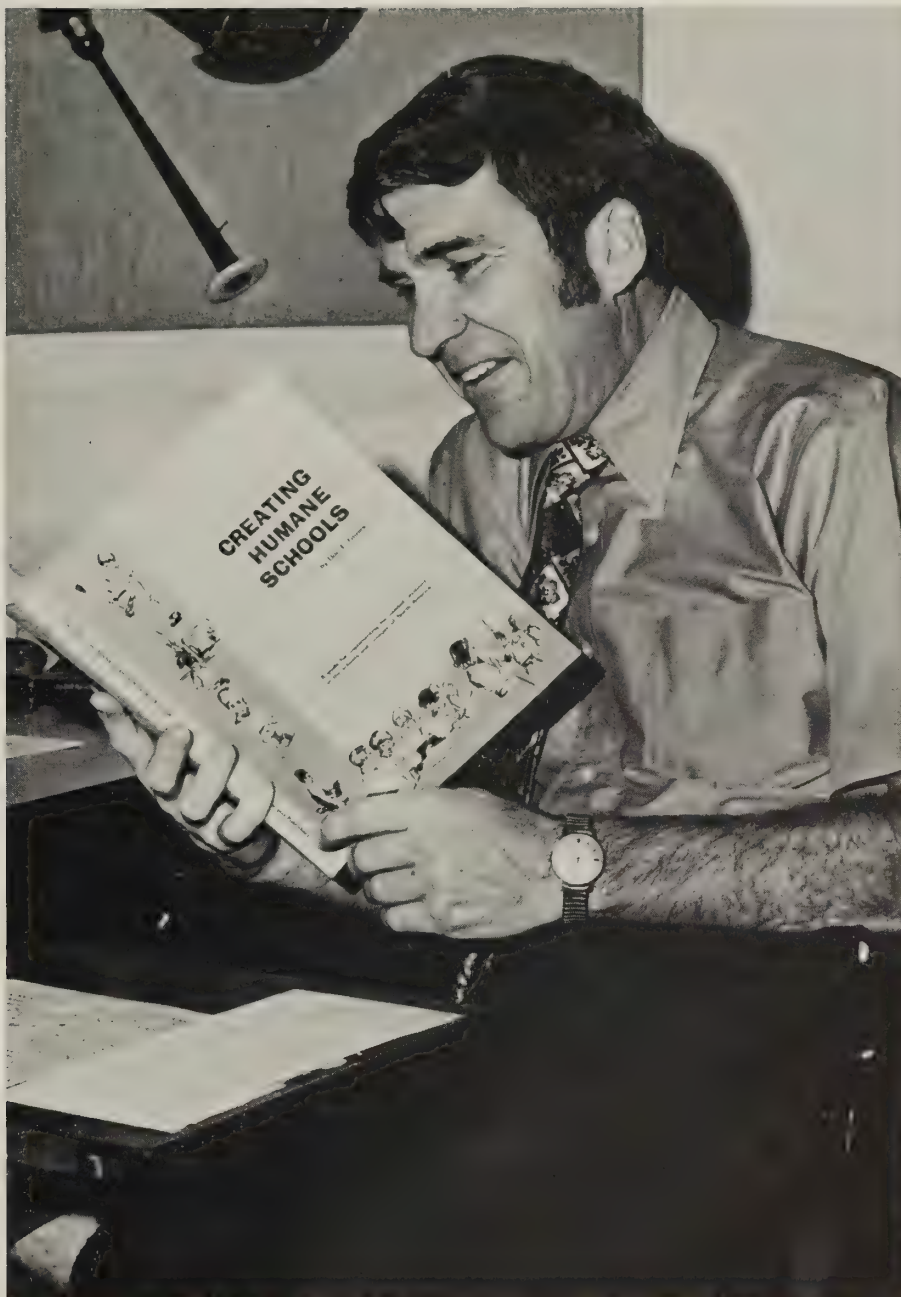

Harry,
You've been a great band manager
this year... none of us would have made it without you. Come over and visit me this

This year, McLean High School would have been almost unrecognizable to a returning graduate of several years ago. There is no longer a dress code and students wandered the halls in every type of garb imaginable. The school day started and ended earlier this year, leaving time for an optional 7th period. This period was used for additional help in regularly scheduled classes, for extracurricular activities, and for additional unscheduled classes. At the end of the year, the guidance office experimented with a new method of scheduling students classes. Students were given the opportunity to schedule themselves, choosing classes and teachers they most wanted to have during the following year.

*Very very
the best school 40 year history has been what has the hall year Good luck to and better*

Individualization seemed to be the key word in education at McLean High School this year. The art department offered courses which were relatively unstructured and allowed the students freedom to express themselves through a variety of media. The science department introduced several innovations in its course offerings, some taught under a contract system which permitted a student to choose the grade level at which he would work and some organized on a completely self-taught basis. English Arts and Aspects of Survival were two new experimental courses, both which left primary responsibility up to the students. The success of these new courses varied; some will be continued, some will not. The real success of any course lies with the individual, and in all of these courses, it was the individual with motivation who most benefited.

ACTIVITIES

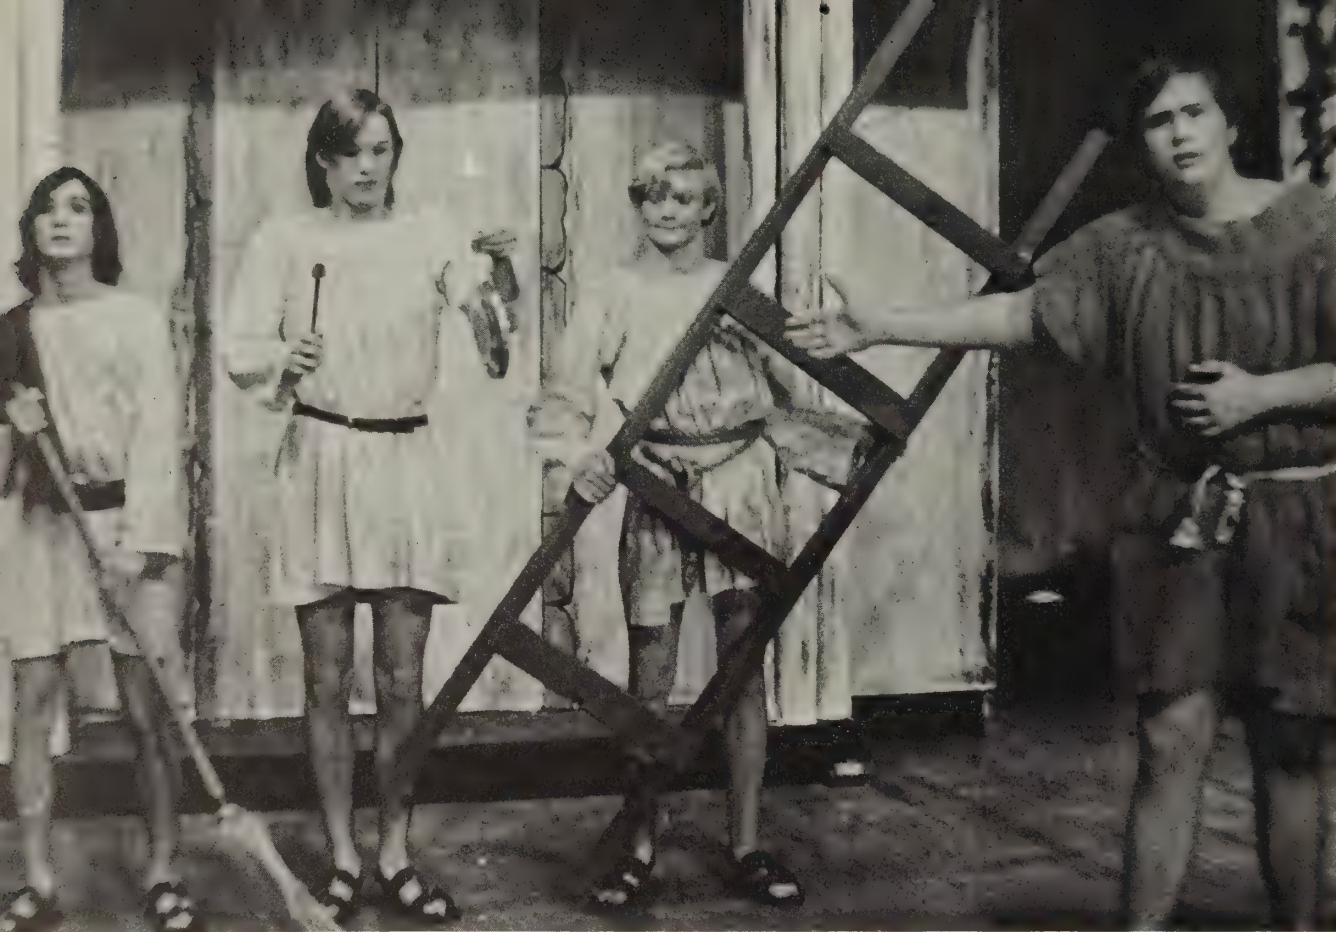

At Christmas time, on the trip to the Soviet Union, a boy said to me, "You are free." With those three words, Alex gave me an understanding of the freedom I had taken for granted for seventeen years. "You are free." Am I really?

My idea of freedom is the absence of requirements—by a school, a job, or by marital ties. It means no responsibilities, to anyone, because I am not yet mature enough to accept them. To me, the word implies an easy, clear life, a chance to do whatever I wish. Yet how can I explain all this to a boy—to a man of twenty six—who only wants the freedom to go where he pleases, whenever he pleases?

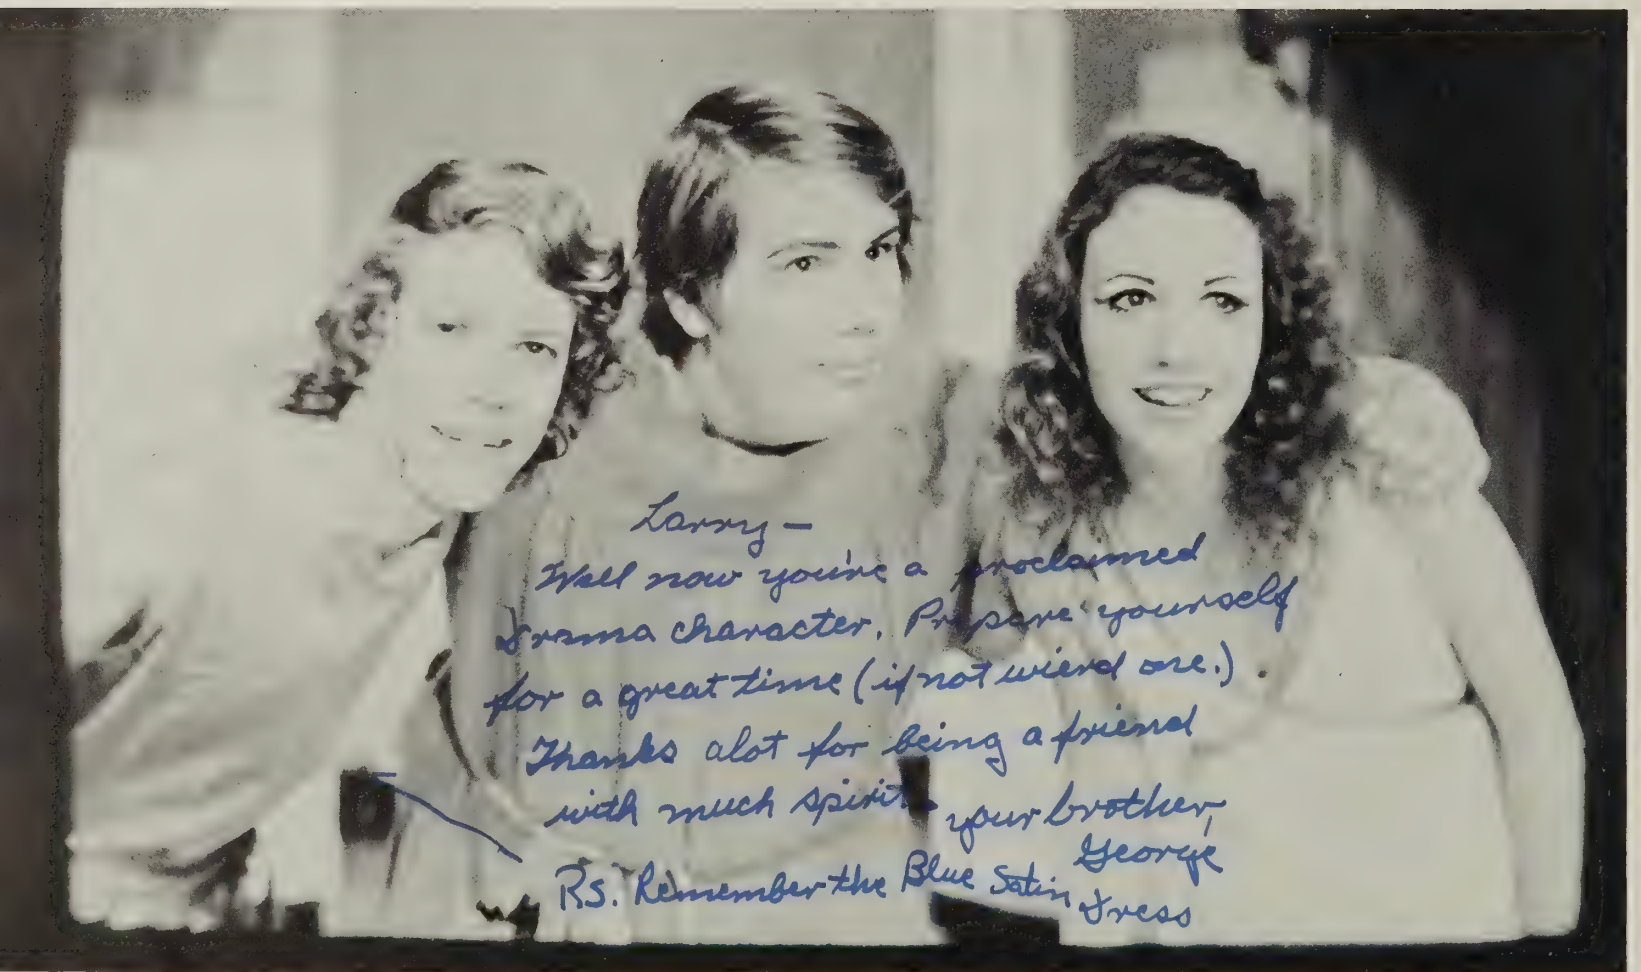

My concept of liberty is so petty and ridiculous when compared to the longing of a man to know foreign countries, to see the world outside. "I can work hard, I can find a good job, I can earn a lot of money," Alex explained, "but it does not matter because I will never get anywhere, I will never leave Russia."

Freedom for me, then, must not be living without social commitments; it must be the ability to decide for myself which obligation I intend to honor. My original thoughts were wrong, for no man has the right to isolate himself through selfishness or immaturity from his fellow man. Every man should be given the freedom, if not to completely determine his own fate, to have some measure of free will in choosing his destiny. Alex has had no say in his. I hope freedom comes to him before it is too late. No government on earth has the right to stifle a man simply because he longs to make his own decisions.

"A FUNNY THING HAPPENED . . .

ON THE WAY TO THE FORUM"

A funny thing happened to the Drama Department this year. Its first musical was a success, enjoyed by audience, cast, and orchestra alike. Rome came to McLean in "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum". Centering around the ancient city, three love stories intertwined to create a ludicrous situation of cunning, conniving comedy. Phil McDermott, as Pseutolus, upset all plans by losing his voice the second night and forcing two untried actors to take over parts that night. Everything was seen on stage, from teachers acting as dirty old men to cute boys in blue silk dresses. Lines were forgotten, cues missed, entrances blown. Nevertheless, the entire cast reassures the audience in the end that this "time it all turns out right" . . . and this time it certainly did!

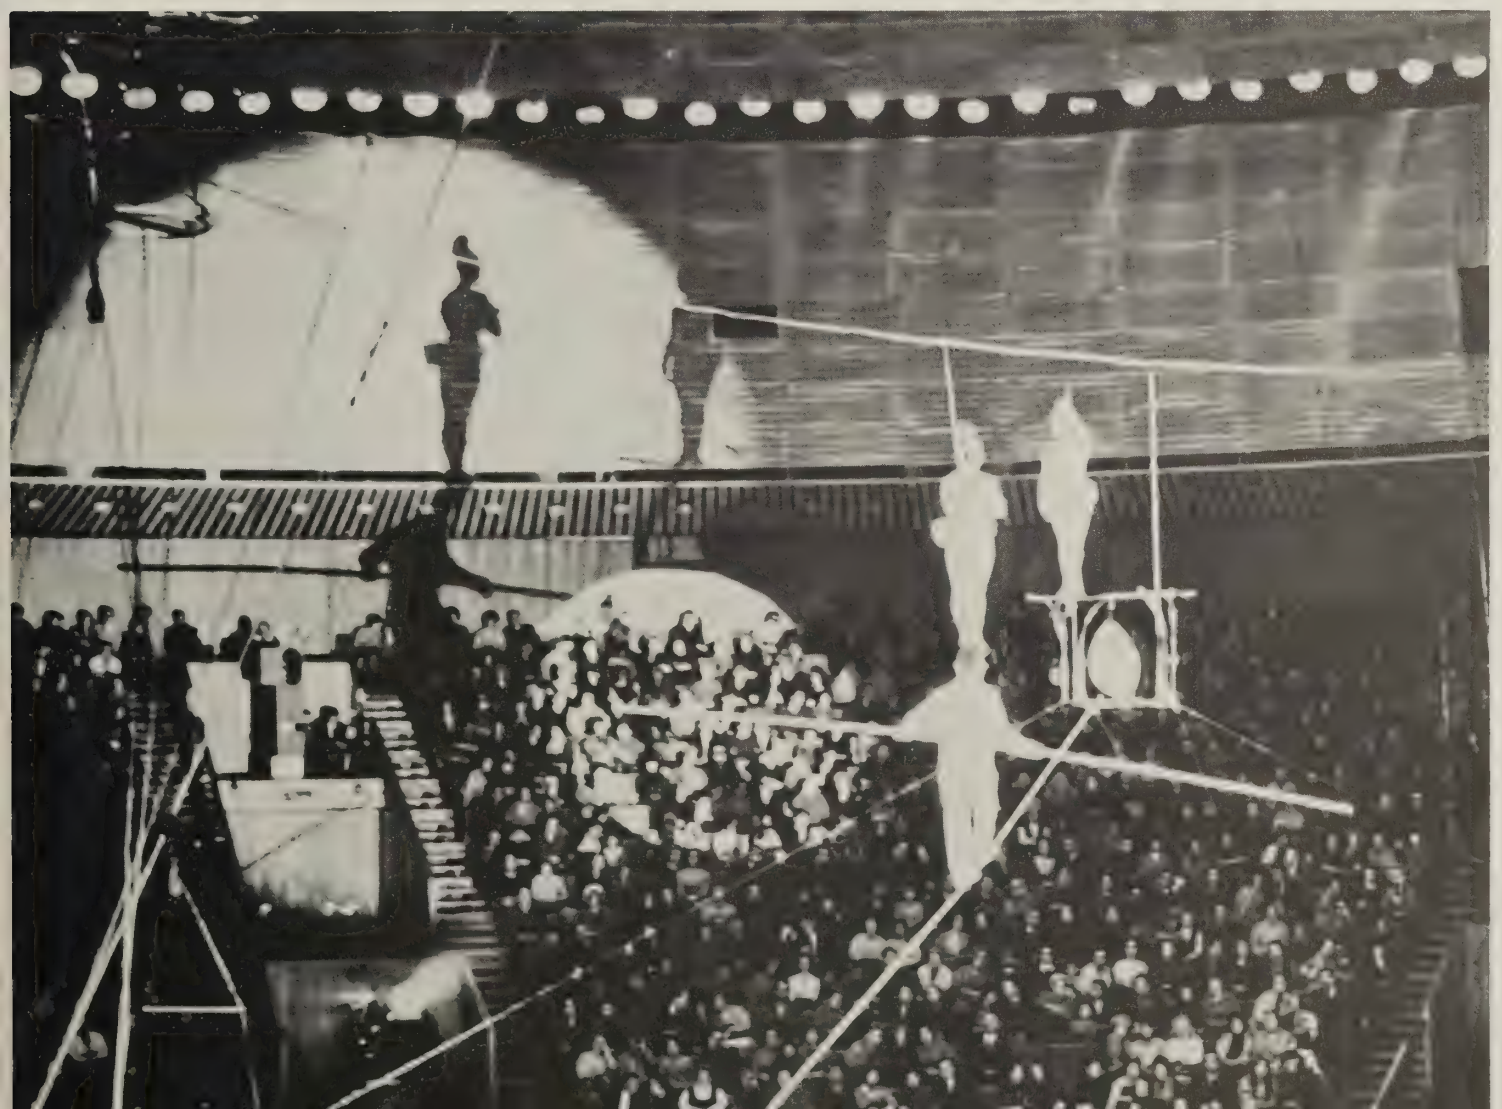

RUSSIA

Fifty people, that number drilled into their heads by repeated body counts, went to Russia over the Christmas vacation. They went to London, Moscow, Leningrad, and Paris, and visited the usual tourist haunts—Big Ben, Red Square, The Hermitage, and the Eiffel Tower. They traveled in 747's and frigid buses and were baffled by incomprehensible languages.

There were no major catastrophes, though a myraid of smaller ones. Everyone had a great time, not so much from the foreign sights, but rather, from growing closer to their American friends, and seeing—as corny as it sounds—Amerika is better.

Behind closed gym doors the Junior Class worked feverishly constructing a showboat and a maze, and trying to hide any evidence of a gym. For some, working on the prom was the best part, for they were too exhausted by the big night to appreciate their handiwork.

There were plenty of people to appreciate it, though. Couples wandered through the showboat, got lost in the maze and danced down the quaint streets of New Orleans. A tearful Cindy Bosco was crowned queen. It was all there—the beauty, the festivity and the joy of Mardi Gras in New Orleans.

HOMECOMING

McLean Homecoming weekend was enjoyable despite our defeat by the Stuart Raiders. The activities got under way with the parade of floats and homecoming princesses and the crowning of Linda Starbuck as Homecoming queen. Halftime entertainment continued with a performance by the award-winning McLean marching band and drill team. The Homecoming Dance was held the following night. The theme was "Up, Up, and Away" and for everyone who attended, the dance provided a delightful ending to Homecoming Weekend.

SADIE HAWKINS

Credit must be given to the persistence and determination of McLean High School's girls. Though the night was cold, wet, and miserable, they managed to get their guys to the Sadie Hawkins dance. The cafeteria was jam-packed.

People wandered around in long red underwear, flannel shirts, ruffled drawers and other interesting paraphernalia. They carried moonshine jugs and wore freckles and crazy hats or beribboned pigtails. They danced, read the Lil Abner cartoons that lined the walls, and danced some more. As the evening wore on, the line in front of Marryin' Sam's chapel stretched further and further as everyone hurried to "git hitched" before it was too late. All in all, everyone had a fine time . . . even the guys who hadn't wanted to come at all.

CHRISTMAS DANCE

Santa Claus came to the Christmas dance this year to wish everyone a Merry Christmas. The Second Nature was there, too, providing music and entertainment. Couples danced amidst the Christmas decorations. For those who attended, this dance was a wonderful start to a long Christmas vacation.

"I GOT LOVE"

The Choral department staged its winter show to the theme of love. Among the highlights of the evening were the Barber-shop Quartet and the finale "I Got Love!" The five choirs and various curtain performances combined to make an enjoyable evening of music.

Wicked witches, magic, and a girl named Dorothy came to McLean in the musical "The Wizard of Oz". Planned originally as a childrens' play, it drew crowds of all ages. Using novelties such as a live dog and little munchkins, "The Wizard of Oz" was a beautifully staged much appreciated performance.

The drama department continued its season with "The Innocents". The suspenseful play concerns a young governess who comes to teach two children. She begins to see ghosts and is convinced that the children are under an evil power. It was never stated, but was left to the audience to decide, whether the visions were real or all in the governess' mind.

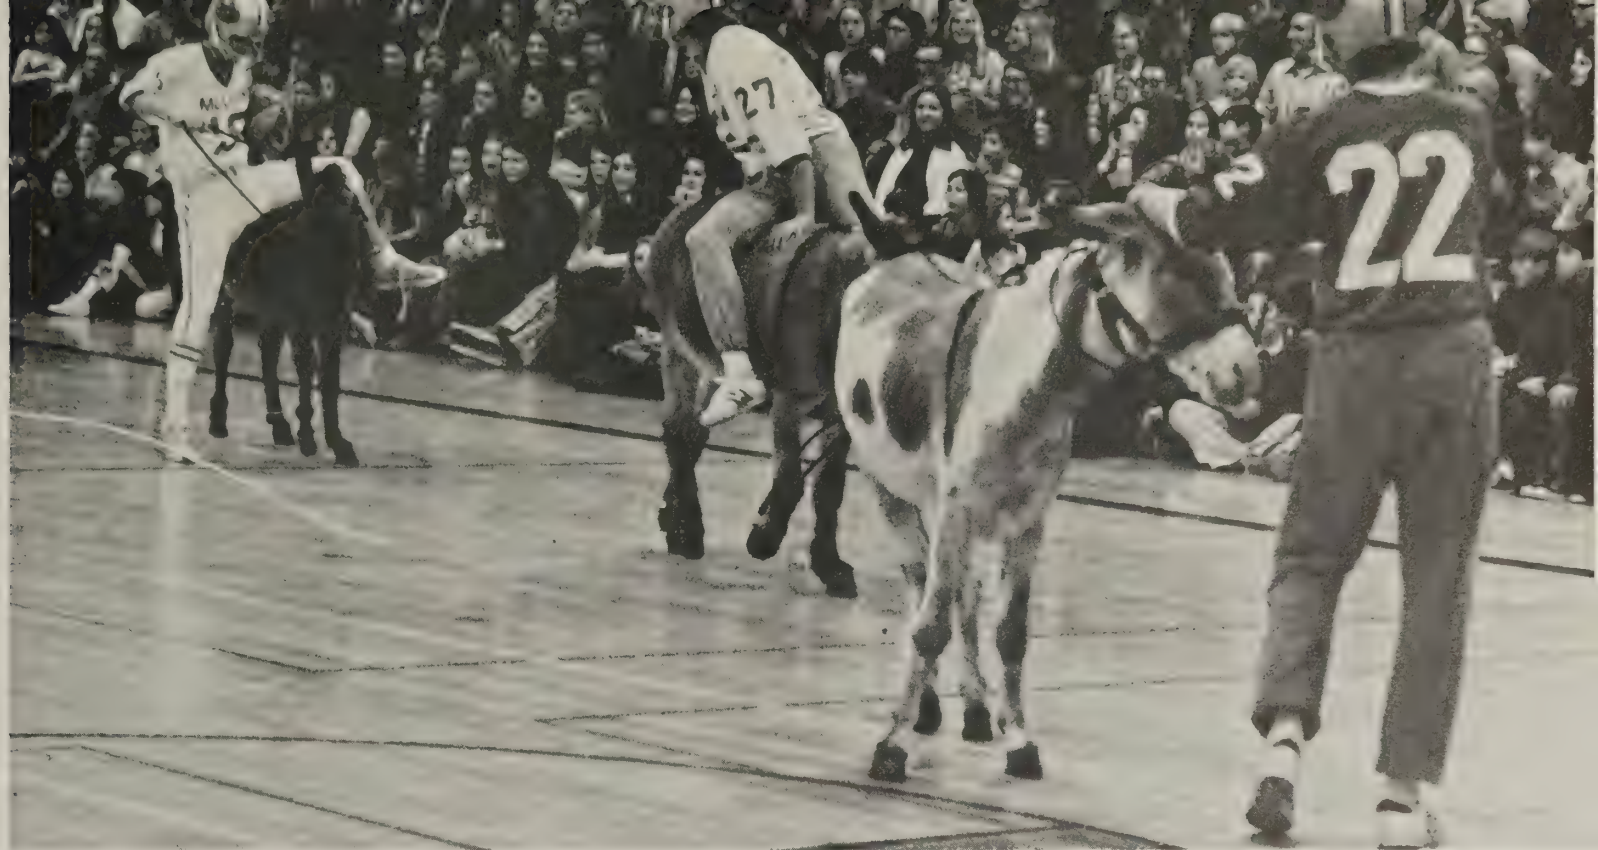

"THE WIZARD OF OZ" "THE INNOCENTS"

JR/SR GAMES

The juniors confronted the seniors twice this year and twice they were victorious. The junior girls led the way, meeting and defeating the seniors on a cold, wet, muddy football field in a game known as powder-puff football. The junior boys followed their lead, defeating the seniors in the junior-senior basketball game. It seems to have been a good year for the juniors. What ever happened to the seniors?

DONKEY BASKETBALL

The donkeys came to McLean this year, to the keen amusement of all who were there to see them. It was a basketball game of sorts, the varsity club versus the faculty. Actually, it was man versus beast, but it was more fun that way.

MISS MCLEAN

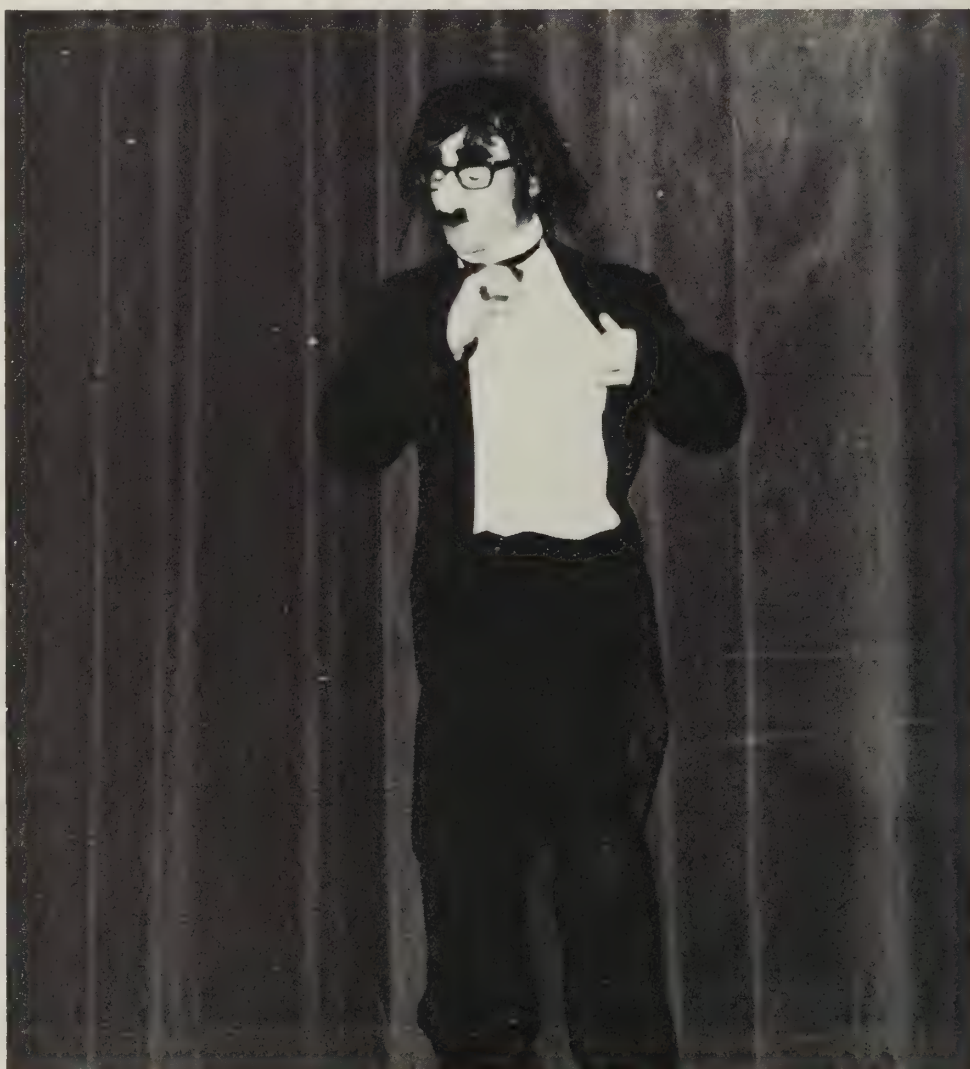

The McLean Key Club again sponsored the Miss McLean Contest which, as a novelty, centered around a theme: Seasons. The contestants performed dances depicting this theme and requiring several afternoons of practice. Mr. Duncan, as emcee, declared Kathy Kassing runnerup and Lenny Granger Miss Congeniality and Miss McLean of 1972.

JR TALENT SHOW

McLean students began their Spring break with an April Fools' dance. It was held in place of the now-defunct Sweetheart Dance. Couples came dressed informally. They frolicked amongst big paper mache animals: an orange beastie, an oversized pink rabbit, a whale, an overbearing green frog There were also giant mushrooms in stripes and polka dots. Everyone who came had a wonderful time. Perhaps the April Fools' dance will become a Spring tradition at McLean.

PROJECT TOUCH

What do you do with forty active, impish children? Ask the McLean students who participated in Project Touch, a program in communication for children. It was hard to say who had more fun, the children or the volunteers, as they took part in piggyback races, football, art and field-trips. Surviving such dangers as snowballs and "muggings", the volunteers finished each Saturday exhausted but anticipating the next week.

SCA BAZAAR

McLean celebrated the coming of Spring with a bazaar this year. The bazaar was such a success that it may become a tradition at McLean. Sponsored by the SCA, the bazaar provided an opportunity for clubs to earn money and for students to have a good time. There were booths selling everything from art work to food to big helium balloons. The drill team sponsored a pie-eating contest which was hilarious. Later, in the evening, the language clubs got together to hold an international banquet which put a festive end to a fun-filled day.

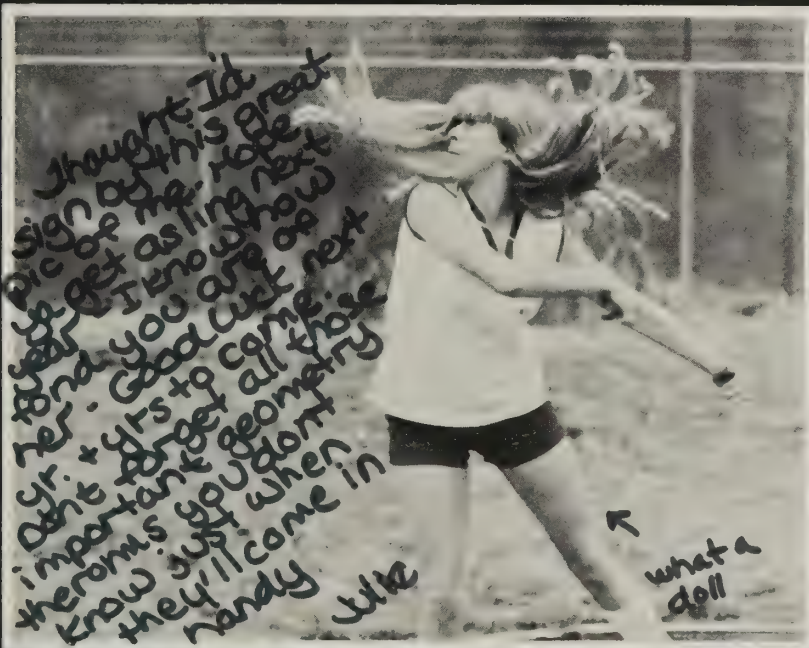

SPORTS

It makes good sense for a young man to want to be a fine athlete; it is not unreasonable for him to suppose that through his body he can attain a perfection otherwise not possible to him. He has little hope of succeeding, however, if he is unwilling to pull his attention away from other tasks. He must stifle any desire that he may have to live an intellectual life to the full. An interest in a splendid body does not, of course, preclude thought. He who improves his body and uses it well must use his mind; he needs sound knowledge of fundamentals, good judgement of what a situation involves, and an understanding of what he, his teammates and his opponents will do. But this is not yet to say that he is one who devotes himself to a life of study and reflection. For, above all, the athlete strives to have a fine body and to use it well. He must dedicate himself to this goal, sacrificing much in the process. Athletes have to discipline themselves, reorganize themselves, punish themselves. Despite the hardships involved, young men are attracted by athletics because it offers them the most promising means for becoming excellent. It is because he is an outstanding instance of what man might do and be that an athlete is an outstanding man.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

Coach Roger C. Cole

Football? It's a great contact sport and a good way to get out of a bad mood. Best of all is knocking people down . . . The thing I like about football is all the strategy. I like trying to figure out what the other team is going to do . . . Football is a great sport as long as you play for fun, but football stops being fun when you worry too much about the win-loss record.

For the McLean Highlanders 1971 was a disappointing season. They started the season at a disadvantage when several anticipated starters failed to come out. This and other factors combined to give the Highlanders a 2-and-8 record. They were victorious over Herndon and Madison, and played a fine game against Falls Church, although they were defeated. Those boys returning next year, and those moving up from j.v., are dedicating themselves to developing into a winning team for the '72 season.

I think the most important thing a songleader does is support the guys—the football players and the wrestlers. We try to give them encouragement, to show them that we are behind them. I don't think of myself as a performer or as entertainment for the people in the stands. We're there for the team.

CROSS-COUNTRY

Brian Thomas

People ask you why you run cross-country . . . All the pain is worth it when you experience the ultimate thrill of running next to a guy the whole way and, in the last stretch, putting out enough to come in ahead of him . . . It's the early morning, streaking rays of sun, dew on the grass, running along in some faraway place when few people are even up . . . I run because it's good for me—good for my body and my mind and my soul . . . Running is one of the few times that I am honest with myself. Not running in competition or breaking records, but just running down the roads or around the track in practice. My mind is open to what I am thinking. It is a time when I am honest with myself.

McLean's cross-country team finished its 1971 season with a two win-three loss record. The team finished fourth in the regional competition. McLean's Brian Thomas took first in the county, first in the district, and first in Northern Virginia. He then went on to become the second fastest cross-country runner in the state.

TENNIS

When you play tennis you play for yourself. You don't have to depend on anyone nor are you responsible to anyone . . . Tennis is good because it exercises both body and mind—to win a tennis match requires not only athletic skill, but also mental concentration. You have to outwit your opponent . . . I play tennis because I like it.

Girl's tennis has barely begun in Fairfax County. McLean's team had very little competition in its second year. Next year, as a returning team with two years experience behind them, they look forward to a good season.

HOCKEY

Hockey is wonderful when the weather is cold and crisp and you're running, running and your side is aching and you feel as though you can't continue, but somehow you do . . . I feel free when I'm running down the field. Free, but at the same time part of a group, working toward the same thing . . . What I enjoy most about hockey is the invigorating atmosphere, the team spirit, with everyone working together. That is the spirit of hockey.

McLean's varsity hockey team has once again proved unbeatable. With a 6-0-2, win-loss-tie, record, the girls took first place in the county and became, for the fourth consecutive year, the Great Falls district champions. The junior varsity, with a 5-1-2 record, tied for first place in the county and came in second in the district.

Wrestling is a good sport because it is so individual. It's all up to you. You can do with it what you want. There's no pressure from the team.

I like the science in it . . . the leverage and stuff. Wrestling is an intellectual sport.

It is fun to be able to smear somebody. There is nothing beautiful about it. It's a lot of hard work, but if you enjoy the brief glory of winning, it makes it worth it.

Despite the loss of several varsity wrestlers from the previous year, the McLean wrestling team, under the direction of Mr. James Garner, had a relatively good season. Especially successful were Rich Valley and Doug Goyne.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

Pre-game warm-up

Don Thompson

I like basketball because it's fast-moving. There's lots of physical exertion which is what I like.

Basketball can really be exciting. Games are often very close and with the ball changing hands so quickly and so often there are lots of upsets. So many things come into play.

You're so close to the fans when you play basketball and everyone is so involved. You really have a sense of the crowds being with you.

McLean's basketball team had quite an act to follow after the performance of last year's basketball team. In addition, they had lost, at the end of the year, one of the best basketball players McLean has ever had. They came through admirably, though, and played some fine games under the direction of their new coach, Mr. Clay Estes. At the end of the season their 1972 record was 8 wins and 11 losses.

GYMNASTICS

Gymnastics is a beautiful, graceful sport that requires both strength and control. Gymnastics helps me to develop a strong, disciplined body with a realization of my physical capabilities.

The individualism of gymnastics is what I like. Even when I am no longer in school, I can continue with forms that require no equipment—like tumbling or free exercise. It is something that I can do myself, as long as I choose; that makes it doubly worthwhile.

Gymnastics is relatively new to McLean. This second year at McLean started with a large and enthusiastic turnout. With the new coach, Sandi Woodford, the team has been rapidly building and improving.

There is so much competition in basketball and so much action. It is an exciting game. You play in very close contact with the other members of the team so there is a real rapport between everyone on the floor. You get really close to everyone on the team because of that.

McLean's girls had another good season this year. The varsity team finished with an 8-2 record which placed it second in the district. The junior varsity was undefeated at the close of the season and was, therefore, the number one j.v. team in the Great Falls district.

SPRING TRACK

Spring afternoons make running nice. The mild weather, the sunshine . . . it's a welcome change after all the cold, wet days of winter. It feels good to run when it's so beautiful outside . . . Track is different than Cross Country. There's more regimentation and less variety in running around a track—it's easy to get bored going round and round, especially when you run distance. There's more glory, too, because there are a lot of spectators. The spectators expect so much of you, though. They almost look on you as if you were a horse.

McLean had a very young track team this year, the majority of the participants being freshmen and sophomores. There were very few returning lettermen from previous years. The team ought to develop into a winning team within the next year or so. This year, Steve McNerney in pole vault and Brian Thomas in the two mile were particularly successful.

Golf is a lifetime game that bridges any generation gap. From it comes a feeling of deep satisfaction, an intense desire for perfection, a developing of control, confidence, coordination and inner calm.

Mr. Bush coached the golf team to an improved season, with each individual developing his own talents. Bruce Highberg and the other returning lettermen headed the players this year.

GIRLS' TRACK

I've always liked girls' track because all the girls have been so close. There is so much tension during competitions, and everyone feels it and feels together, albeit they're competing individually. It's good to have the other girls there, sympathizing and rooting for you.

In its fourth year at McLean, girls' track was finally recognized as a major sport. A lot of girls came out to run and a lot ran well. McLean was well represented at meets, all the way to state. With a large number of underclassmen, McLean's girls' track team looks forward to a happy future.

SOCCER

Bob Coote

Spring soccer in Fairfax County was elevated to an official varsity sport—at least for the rest of the county—at McLean it was already well established. In the past, soccer existed as a “club sport” with two seasons: one in fall and another in spring. Last year the McLean High Club were the county champions in the fall season and 2nd in the district in the spring. This year the clubs of Langley and McLean were forced to combine for the fall season in order to retain eligibility for the spring varsity competition. The two schools, being the two best in the county, again won the club championship. Besides the county play, six McLean players: Bob Geiger, Kevin and Heath Carney, David McDermott, Bob Coote, and Tom Kent, and several Langley players competed in the National Football League, a league of men from twenty to thirty and from foreign countries and colleges. Here also the McLean-Langley team placed high. But the important season was in spring as a varsity sport.

With a new coach, Mr. Henry, adding enthusiasm and direction to the team, and the superb play of the team, particularly Bob Geiger and Bob Coote on offense and David McDermott and Tom Kent on defense, the team again had a successful season.

SOFTBALL

Softball is very much an individual sport in some ways, but at the same time you have to rely on your teammates more than you do in any other sport. Whether you win or lose can depend solely, for instance, on the person at bat and you can only watch and hope that person does what has to be done.

The girls' softball teams could not help but have a good season this year. They had nearly complete teams returning from the previous year with lots of experience behind them. And as was expected, they performed very well throughout the 1972 season.

TENNIS

The poet Ciardi once compared tennis to poetry, because just as the poet responds to the infinite combinations of words and their twisting, unpredictable meaning, the tennis player responds to the combinations of shots and spins, the unforeseen bounces of cunning opponents.

Most tennis players, however, just enjoy the game—not necessarily because it is like poetry. Their reasons are just as varied as the bounces: some for exercise, others for self-fulfillment, still others for the test, excitement, and the competition—all earthy and solid reasons, as is the game. Tennis is a quick and practical sport, more of intellect and fortitude than brawn and power, and challengingly enjoyable.

The tennis team at McLean came under a new coach, Mr. Glenn, and despite the fact that last year the top six players graduated, it was an experienced team. Because past teams have been so strong, the match would be won in the first six singles sets; this year's team played nearly every match and were not untried and nervous. With players like Jerry Wood, Gary Martin, and Dave Hermsmeier, the team proved themselves a dominating match for any opponent. They went on to play a fairly good season.

BASEBALL

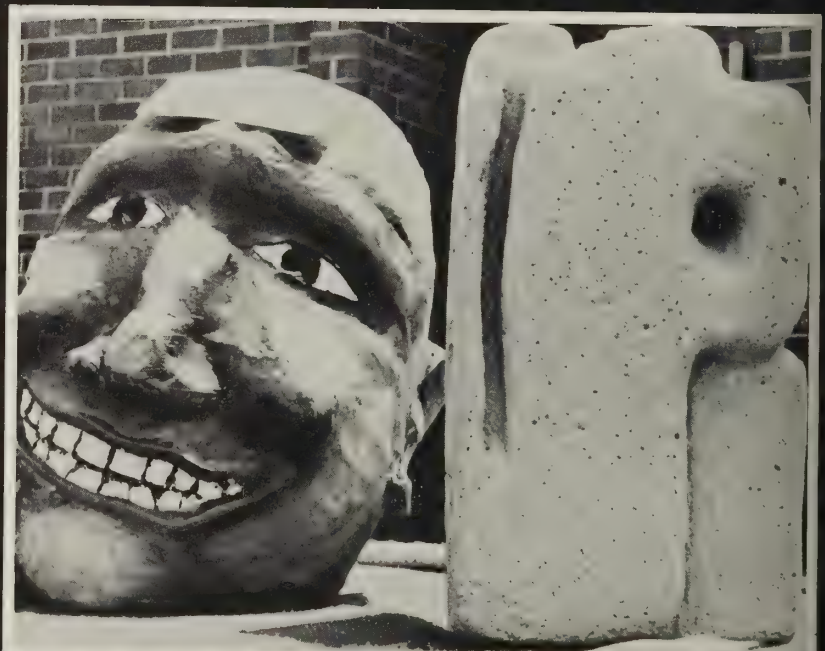

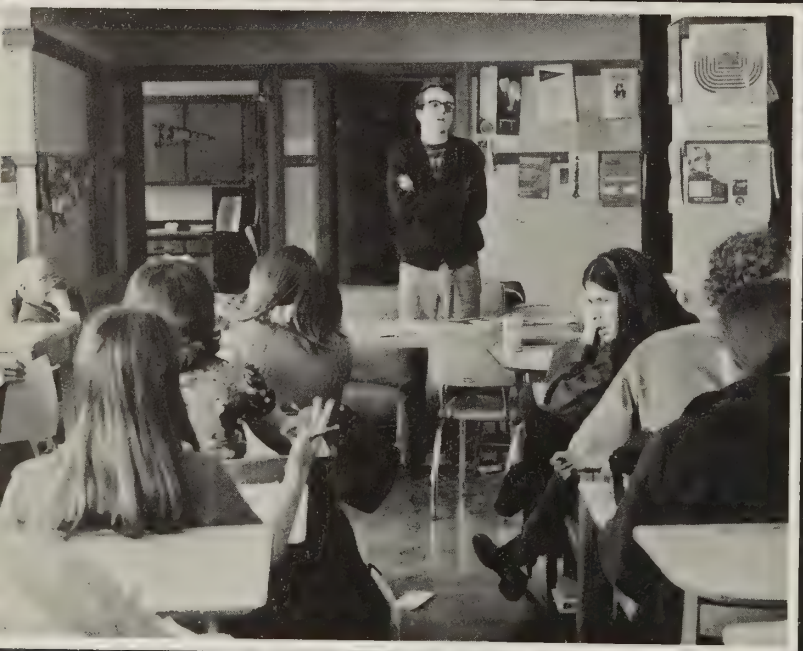

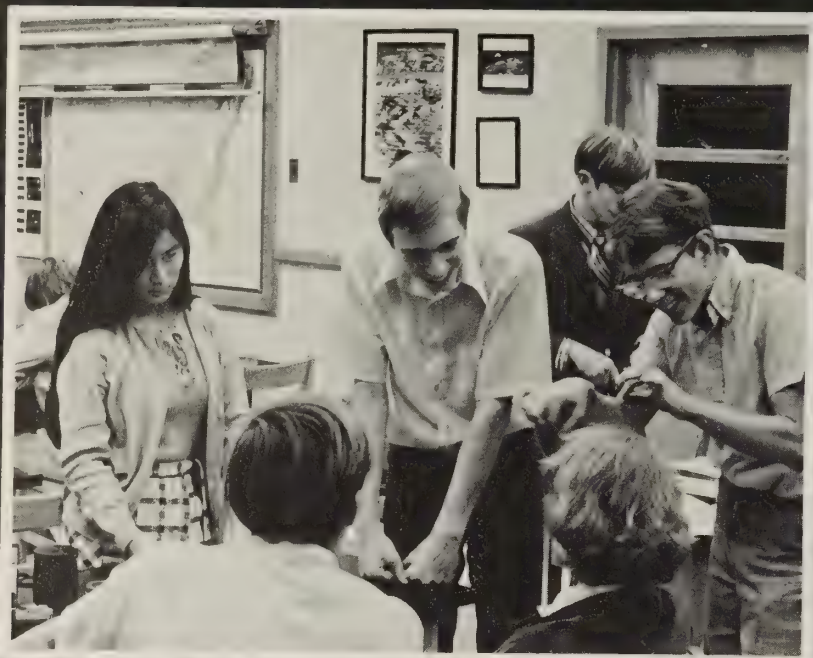

I don't know why I play baseball. It's a game a lot of us have been playing for a long time, ever since we were very young.

I just like the sport, I guess, . . . the competition, the tension . . . Besides, spring is a great time to be outside running around.

McLean had a good ball club this year. Returning players Bill Harvey, Mak Kelliher, Tim Prime, Randy Russell, Jim Stigamire and Curt Laub were the mainstays of the team. With the few seniors on the team, next year should see an even more experienced group of boys out on the diamond.

ORGANIZATIONS

There seems, recently, to be less interest in clubs and school organizations than there has been in the past. Recent years have seen fewer clubs at McLean and smaller memberships in those which do exist. This is not to say that school organizations have not been active; on the contrary, 1971-72 saw many activities and innovations initiated by various groups within the school.

For the first time in several years, the SCA was an active functioning body of student government. Under the leadership of Steve Standiford, the SCA concerned itself with such diverse matters as the controversial smoking issue, the installation of bike racks and coke machines and the question of a longer Spring break. There was an effort made for increased communication between students and administration, on a county, as well as a school level. Most importantly, the SCA made a sincere effort to be responsive to student needs and desires.

This year, under the direction of Mr. Robert Miller, McLean's Marching unit has developed into the best in the area. This unit, consisting of marching band, drill team, majorettes and Swiss flag corps, travelled extensively in the Maryland-Virginia region. They performed in parades and competed in competitions throughout the year, seldom failing to bring home an award to add to their growing collection of trophies.

Providing entertainment several times during the year were the greatly-enlarged McLean choirs. There were five choirs this year, with the result that many more students were able to participate. Mrs. Carolyn Anderson directed her choirs in five excellent concerts, all of which drew full houses. Between those performing and those applauding, a great many students took part in the musical experience at McLean.

These are only a few of the activities which went on at McLean in the past year. Organizations are an integral part of education in high school because they give students the opportunity to go beyond the classroom and into the community. They provide opportunities to meet new people and new situations. They give students the opportunity to truly become part of the school.

UNDERCLASS

McLean High School—Where students study (or don't study) . . . Where they procrastinate, philosophize, discuss and analyze

Where they shoot baskets, run, jump, turn somersaults, do cartwheels, toss footballs and tackle

Where students create and destroy; Where they slide down bannisters, run down hallways, climb over fences

Where they take pictures, play politics, act in plays, march in the band

Where students sleep . . . drift . . . wander . . . waste time

Where they write essays and read books and parlez en francais (and English und Deutsch y espanol)

Where they go to classes (or don't go to classes)

Where they kiss, flirt, and walk hand-in-hand down the halls

McLean High School—Where students laugh and cry, hope and fear . . . Where they regret, complain, advise, console

. . . Where people are ecstatic, depressed, lonely, afraid; Where they are puzzled, joyous, amused, curious . . . and where, hopefully, they grow up.

IN MEMORIAM

Timothy Button

December 3, 1956-December 14, 1971

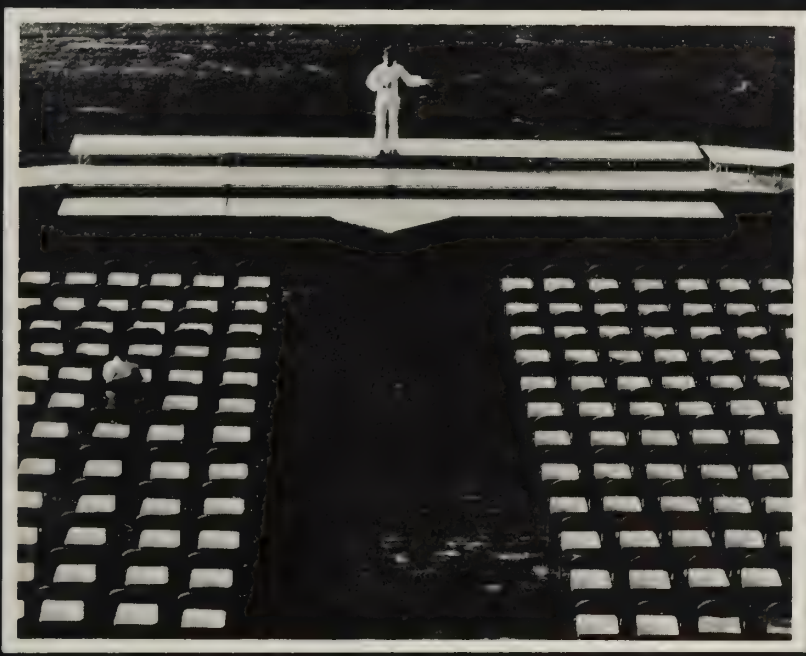

SENIORS

The character of the class of '72 has changed during the four years that they attended McLean High School. On the whole, as freshmen, they were no more or less bewildered or apathetic than most; but they had the distinction of having the first freshman Miss McLean winner. In their sophomore year the anti-war movement electrified the class. Some actively participated in the rallies; and, in the spring, an afternoon of school was suspended because of the Cambodian incursion. Also in that year, another member of the class of '72 was crowned Miss McLean—again stealing the prize from the upperclassmen.

The political activism that began in the sophomore year was transformed into others forms of involvement in junior year. The students pushed for educational reforms and modular scheduling; Free School Week was one result . . . Some of this activism was directed into faith and reflection. But most of it was aimed at the Prom and its costs. The two main factions of the class fought bitterly over the budget. Annual class elections were postponed, as consideration was being given to the adoption of a senior council.

The class of '72 began its senior year in the midst of confusion. There was still no class government, and the normal patterns and structures were upset. The confusion climaxed with college application deadlines and the SAT's. Each senior became aware that an important part of his life was quickly ending, as he attended one last football game or as he ordered graduation announcements.

And after four years . . .

Dear Tony:

Gee, you're gonna be a tough old senior next year - how does it feel?
I'm glad I met you
and found that you're a blast to know. Sure does liven up the class and day! I hope you and "cuddles" have a nice time in the hall - you're always asking him to go out in the hall! - don't know about you dearheart!
I just kidding sweets & hope we see you in the summer and next year - have a great summer & stay sweet.

Love ya
Marion 174

Larry -
 Thanks for helping HDT so much this year - glad you get to march next year - you deserve it!
 Luck next year - its the last one!
 Mary Louis
 St. Louis

because none of all these things could have happened if you weren't around to let them happen you're a good person, in case you don't know it Be good,
smile, jump, scream, run, be happy and take care I'll miss you this summer. Take it easy, okay? Love always,
LKA
Larry,
In remembrance of all the fights
... wrestles...
... tickles
... stealings...
... smiles...
... hellos...
... relay races...
... scares...
... kicks...
... memories... I know that in all of that I'll never forget

Larry, Someday you just might be able to get to my house without wasting a whole ~~the~~ tank of gas. But in case you can't, just follow these few simple instructions: Down old Chest. first Left, first Left, second right, first right first ~~Left~~ Left, first right, first Left,
first right, second Left, first Left, ^{first} ~~second~~ Left, first Left, ~~first Left, first Left,~~
maybe!

Good Luck always stay out of too much trouble!

God
Bless

Don

UP YOUR ANNUAL
LARRY J. Q.
(Lawrence J. Quinn)

Well Larry what do you want me to say? That you sweet, wonderful, nice, ect. . .? well I just can't go that far! But I will say that it has been rather interesting with you in Spanish and that I thought that wensdays were interesting too O.K.

Susan

Summer ended one day in September and school began. It would not be long before school would end and it would be summer again. In the meantime nothing stood still. The season came and went, the physical structure of the school changed, the individuals within the school changed. No one theme could adequately describe all that went on within the school. Every individual who was part of it—1950 students and 110 teachers and administrators—would find a different word, a different image, a different emotion to define the year.

To some, McLean High School brings to mind a physical plant: buildings, athletic fields, fences, bleachers. To them, the 1971-1972 academic year was the year we had to put up with mud—inside, outside, everywhere—as a parking lot, athletic fields and tennis courts were added to the school. According to most, though, it was the people within the buildings who made the school. It was the experience of meeting people, of learning and growing with others that made the year what it was. At least a fourth of the students were preoccupied with thoughts of the near future when they would no longer be a part of the school. For them, the year went slowly; they were impatient and eager to leave.

Eventually summer came; the year ended and the senior class moved on. McLean High School, which had been so important to them for four years, became little more than a memory. But that is not important because, come some September day, summer will end. McLean High School will once again be filled with people. It will be very important to those people and the group that has left will not matter at all.
